"Early on when Sam and I were "dating", we spent a lot of time talking about a book called "You Just Don't Understand", about the different ways that men and women communicate and how that can lead to misunderstandings. Now that Sam has lost his ability to speak, he can't tell me what he wants or why he's upset, and the fact that I can't figure it out only increases his frustration. I wrote this tune to try to capture what it must feel like for him when he knows what he wants but nobody can understand." PJ
